

30,000 Square feet and more than 100 years of weddings, trials and orange county history

Floor Plan

- 3. Clerk Recorder, Marrriage Licenses & Passports

- 7. Museum Exhibit Gallery

The Cupola

The Long Beach earthquake of 1933 damaged the red sandstone gable ends and turrets. The sandstone was replaced by painted stucco, while the turrets were replaced by finials. The most notable damage, however, was sustained by the pressed metal cupola. It was so badly damaged it had to be removed.

1992

The courts leave the Old Orange County Courthouse for a new and larger facility down the street. Some government functions

2001

The Old Orange County Courthouse celebrates

Present

begins work.

County Board of Supervisors

architect Charles L. Strange commissions design of a

courthouse, Los Angeles

Orange County's beautiful new granite and sandstone courthouse is formally dedicated.

1893

County of Orange purchases land from William Spurgeon, founder of Santa Ana

1900

Due to rapid population growth in Orange County,

a second courtroom is added.

The Long Beach earthquake damages the sandstone gable ends and turrets, and the metal cupola. The cupola is removed

The Old Orange County Courthouse is listed on the National Register of Historic Places, in the California Register of Historical Resources

1983

Restoration begins on the Old Orange County Courthouse

Restoration is completed on the Old Orange County Courthouse.

1977

and as California Historical Landmark No. 837.

Timeline

Construction of the Old Orange County Courthouse began in 1900, and was completed 17 months later. Los Angeles architect Charles L. Strange chose a style called Richardsonian Romanesque. Featuring semicircular arches and columns with ornamented capitals, the Old Orange County Courthouse is one of the few remaining examples of this style in Southern California.

The Old Orange County Courthouse was originally constructed of brick with a steel superstructure. Veneers of red Arizona sandstone and Temecula granite covered the entire building. Above the main entrance is an example of tracery, with stylized images of twining leaves, flowers and animal heads. On the east side is a carved balcony featuring a female face. On the west side balcony is a carved image of the scales of justice.

1. OC Archives

2. Clerk of the Board Assessment Appeals

4. Jury Room

5. Court Reporter's Office

6. Courtroom No. One